The Local Club Wins from New York and Releases Its Grip on the Tail End.

Chicago Takes a Third Game from Boston-A Couple of One-to-Nothing Scores at Pittsburg-Detroit Defeats Washington.

The Indianapolis club accomplished the double feat yesterday of defeating the League leaders and jumping out of the tail-end position, It did most of it in the first inning of the game. For the first time in two years the club, on its home grounds, sent the visitors first to bat, and after it had retired them in remarkably quick order it went in and scored four runs. It made no more during the game, but thanks to Burdick and the fielders behind him, it needed no more. The outlook was not the most cheerful when the game began. Glasscock was absent from the team, having had an attack of malaria something similar to the sickness which troubled him so long early in the spring. In his place at short was Denny, so there was no danger of short field being neglected, but Buckley had to go to third. The big lead, however, may have encouraged the boys, and they also had a great deal of confidence in Burdick. It looked for a time as if the Giants were to receive their second shut-out of the season, but in the last three innings the visitors made the proverbial three runs which they have secured in every one of their closing series here. It was a very close finish, and worked the nerves of the spectators up to a very high pitch. It was easy to see how auxious the home club was to win. Even so staid a player as Paul Hines threw his cap into the air and threatened to turn a som-ersault when, in the ninth inning, Schoeneck made a remarkable pick-up of Myers's very bad throw and thus saved Ward from reaching first base. Schoeneck cannot be too highly praised for this great play, made at a critical moment. A better catch of a thrown ball was never made by a first baseman. The big fellow played a good fielding game all the way through, and in one inning surprised his opponents by stealing second base on them. He now has a better stolen-base record than one-fourth of the players in the League. Denny also did some fine work at short, and Bassett at second, and the general field work of the home team was excellent. The visitors also played a good game, as they always do, although Murphy showed a lack of acquaint-ance with Keefe's pitching, the latter being handicapped somewhat, no doubt, in conse-

No New Yorker reached a base in the first inning. Richardson and Connor hit hard raps, but Bassett and Denny were in the way. Then the home club went in and in one inning made as many runs as it made in both the previous games. Hines began with a hard hit, which Richardson partly stopped but could not field, and on Denny's fly, which dropped safe back of first base, he reached third. Denny, a moment later, started to steal second, and when the catcher threw to Ward, Hines came in, reaching the plate in safety, inasmuch as the literary short-stop dropped the throw. Seery worked a base on balls, and he and Denny made a joint steal to the bases, much to the confusion of the coming champions and to the delight of the spectators. Bassett forced Denny out at the plate, but Daily came to the rescue with a line drive to right field. Tiernan started directly for the ball, aiming to secop it up with one hand, but he did not even stop it or prevent it rolling to the fence, two more men scoring and Daily reaching third, whence he came in on a short passed ball, the ball striking the umpire and enabling the runner, according to the rules, to advance a base. Schoeneck afterward got a base on balls, and stole second, but died there. At this point the home team stopped run-making, and set out to keep the visitors from making any. This proved a difficult task in the second and third innings, In the second Whitney made a hit after one out and reached second on Slattery's sacrifice, but Bassett jumped up and caught O'Rourke's liner. In the third Murphy was retired, but Keefe got in a scratch hit and went to third on Ward's double. He tried to score on Richardson's grounder to Bassett, but the excellent seca base on balls, which filled the bases and brought Connor to bat, but he drove a fly up among the clouds which came down and settled in Schoeneck's hands. Matters went along pretty smoothly then until the seventh, although in the sixth a very unfortunate circumstance happened, in an injury to catcher Daily, who was hit on the leg by a foul tip and hurt so badly that he had to retire and may be disabled for some days. Buckley went behind the bat and Myers came on the field and took third. In the seventh inning the visitors made two runs on singles by Slattery, Murphy and Ward, two sacrifices, and an error by Myers, who had a chance to save one of the runs had he fielded Richardson's grounder. In the eighth, after two outs, the troublesome Slattery hit down the left foul line for two bases, and scored on O'Rourke's liner, which Bassett jumped for and came near reaching as he had in the second inning. In the ninth inning the crowd watched apprehensively while Keefe, the first batter, struck out. Then Ward hit to Myers, who threw about three feet in front of first base, but Schoeneck gathered in the ball and saved the game. Richardson sneaked in a bit over second base, an ac-

The Defense in the Ballard Murder Trial Endeavors to Prove an Alibi. Special to the Indianapolis Journal

SHOALS, Sept. 10 .- The Ballard murder trial was resumed to-day, with continued interest, having been postponed from Thursday last on account of the illness of Judge Heffron. The State closed its evidence before adjournment on Thursday, and the evidence for the defense was to-day began, James K. Emmons, Geo. Emmons, Jonathan Emmons and Philip C. Emmons swearing that Rev. John Stone and some half-dozen other persons were at a religious meeting at Davis Emmona's on the night before the murder, and all testified that neither John Stone nor David Emmons was away from the house of Davis Emmons on the night of the murder, and could not have participated in the crime. The evidence pointed strongly to other parties. It begins to look like Quackenbush and his brother-in-law, a deserter who was seen on the day before, armed with a gun and two revolvers, and for whom Ballard was searching as a deserter with a view to arrest and return to the service, might be guilty. John Shields testified that he knew Anderson, the deserter; that it was generally known that Ballard was after him to arrest him; that about sunrise on the morning of the murder, and not over an hour from the time it was committed, the witness saw this deserter and his wife on foot, about one mile from the scene of the murder; he had a carpet-sack in his right hand and she had a parcel tied up in something red in her left hand, and they were running at the top of their speed, getting away from the place where the murder was committed. Defendant Stone testified that he had nothing to do with the killing of Ballard, and corroborated what was said about his whereabouts, adding that he did not see any of his co-defendants on the night of the murder or the next day.

Drunken Miner Shot Dead.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal ROCKVILLE, Sept. 10.-Another murder was committed in this county, Sunday, at Roseville, a mining village. On Saturday night Nathan Jewell, a large, burly, colored miner, known by the name of "Sugar-foot," in company with Wyatt Reed, another miner, went from Marshall over to Roseville, where they got drunk, cleaned out a dancing party, and had things their own way. On Sunday they returned to Roseville, bent on more fighting. After filling up with whisky they met a man named Jeffreys, and a fight ensued. "Sugar-foot" had a finger shot off, and a second shot penetrated his temple and killed him outright, while trying to enter a saloon. Wyatt Reed had his nose broken by a brick, and was otherwise disfigured. "Sugar-foot" came from Terre Haute and was working at the Minshall mines. He brought a woman with him, and it is thought some of the trouble originated from this source. Some arrests have been made, but the man who did the shooting is still at large. He is no doubt hidden in the mine.

Sunday-School Normal Institute. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

SPRINGPORT, Sept. 10 .- During the past week a most interesting and profitable Sunday-school normal has been in session in this place. It began on Tuesday and continued until last night. It was held under the auspices of the Indiana Christian Sunday-school Association, and was conducted by Rev. L. L. Carpenter, of Wabash, the State evangelist. Many of the schools in Delaware and Henry counties were largely represented, and the enthusiasm and interest was great. It closed yesterday with a grand Sunday-school mass meeting, conducted by Evange-list Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter preached here yesterday and last night to very large audiences. The normal is pronounced by all a greet success, and will result in great good to the cause in this part of the State. As a normal instructor Mr. Carpenter delighted his audience, and the five days he was here were days of great profit to all who attended.

The McGrew-Atterbury Suit. special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WABASH, Sept. 10 .- The celebrated damage suit of Wm. McGrew, a prominent banker of Huntington, against Charles L. Atterbury, of New York city, came up in the Wabash Circuit Court to-day, on change of venue, and after a brief argument was dismissed. McGrew, while a director in the Chicago & Atlantic railway, made statements concerning Frederick Broughton, general manager, characterizing him as a drunkard, and incompetent. This was conveyed to Broughton by Atterbury, and in consequence a heavy damage suit was brought against McGrew by Broughton. McGrew then sued Atterbury for conveying his allegations, though not denying having used the language.

Natural Gas for Wabash.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal WABASH, Sept. 10 .- To-day the contract was let to lay the pipe for the line which will connect this city with the natural-gas field a few miles south of town. Senator Sherman Again Shows that He Is a Statesman of the Broadest Type. special to the Indianapolis Joprnal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.-The speech of Senator Sherman on recommittal of the Chinese bill. to-day, has received more commendation than any other speech delivered in the Senate during the present Congress. Without a single exception, it has been warmly approved on all sides. In the language of one of the most bitter Democratic partisans who heard it. "it was the speech of a statesman with an eye single to the country's good, and without any desire to make party capital out of an unfortunate chain of circomstances." The Senate at times gets into wrangles which are disgraceful to its dignity and to the country. Such was the case to-day, when Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, goaded on by the sneers and insults of Morgan, of Alabama, practically accused that gentleman of entering the Senate chamber in a state of intoxication. The ordinary newspaper reader will read the account of this event, and the result will be that the Senate will again come in for more its just share of abuse; yet the speech of Senator Sherman, which will doubtless be printed side by side with the Mitchell-Morgan incident, will scarcely attract any attention, owing to the absence of a "scare head" over the latter event, as chronicled in the sensational newspapers of the country. The thinking men of the country will, however, hail with pleasure the news that there is at least one Senator in the Senate of the United States who could forget party advantage and personal considerations in a moment of supreme importance to the welfare of the country. Senator Sher-man has again demonstrated that he is one of the ablest statesmen in public life.

Food for Reflection.

Some time since the scientific heads of the Great Universities of the country took up the subject of baking powders, subjecting every brand on the American market to a chemical inquisition that nothing known to the adulterator's art could possibly escape. A feature of their findings, a feature that has food for reflection in it, is that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder was found to be free from all adulterants. The most perfect made.

THE DOG AND THE SHADOW

A Dog, crossing a bridge over a stream with a piece of flesh in his mouth, saw his own shadow in the water, and took it for that of another Dog, with a piece of meat double his own in size. He therefore let go his own, and fiercely attacked the other Dog. to get his larger piece from him. He thus lost both. - Æsop's Fables.

IT ALWAYS PAYS to hold on to a good thing. People who have tried Santa Claus Soap hold on to it because it is good. Some may think that because there are other Soaps that give more in bulk for the money, that they are cheaper; but such bulk is made up with rosin. When quality is sacrificed for quantity, such soap is not cheap at any price. Santa Claus Soap is the best, and is sold by all grocers. It is made only by

The heated, unparliamentary and personal expressions used in debate by Senator Morgan and Mitchell, to-day, have, upon reflection, and upon the counsel of mutual friends, been stricken from the Congressional Record.

The Locomotive Firemen. ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.-The public exer-

About 250 delegates were present. Grand Master Sargent presided at the morning session, which was devoted chiefly to the routine work of the organization. This afternoon Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Engineers, addressed the meeting. He laid before the firemen the different phases of the "Q" strike but made no proposi-In conversation to-night he said that all he wanted was to present the engineers' case, leaving the fireman to act as they pleased in the matter. He said the strike was still on, and the men were willing to go to work if the road would pay what the other roads did for the same work. As the delegates came from the ball, two delegates took contributions for the Jacksonville sufferers, and $142 was contributed. There will be morning and afternoon sessions all this week.
